Your Monthly Information Source for Everything AdQue.

Hello!

This month we have lots of images for you. In addition to your monthly generic images, we have a new holiday series and new Employee Message backgrounds for you to use for before and after hours internal messaging. Don't forget the Manager's Message topic has been renamed to Whiteboard to more appropriately reflect the many subtopics. We also have a reminder about the new Quick Publish button and functionality change to Express.

We hope you have a fun and safe Fourth of July weekend!

Christmas in July

Check out our new holiday series with rotating images and plenty of room to add your closing dates or personalized messages. Templates have also been created for easy use with the web-based flash editor.

And, while you are looking at the holiday images don't forget to check out the new employee message backgrounds. These backgrounds have also been given a new topic under manager's message so you can keep your messages separate. Start using your AdQue system to notify and educate employees before hours.

For questions or a demo of how to create a storyboard to play before hours email us at contactus@adque.com or call 877.246.7587.

We are always here to help.

DON'T FORGET: Express Functionality Change

Many of you have asked for more control over when items are published. In the past, setting an asset's (image or flash) play status automatically published a new storyboard and schedule, while changing a storyboard item or exclusion required an explicit publish. Now, you decide it all -- All changes now need to be explicitly published--nothing is sent automatically.

But, so you don't forget, and to make it easier to publish heads--we've added a quick publish button—the big red button on the top right of the management screen—that will illuminate if you have any heads that need to be published.

- If you don't see this button, all your sites are up-to-date.
- If you do see the button, this means you have made a change that requires a publish on one or more heads.
- Hovering over this button will display the heads that need publish.
- Clicking on the button will then publish those heads and the button should disappear.

All other AdStudioExpress functionality remains the same. You can still publish from the AdStudioExpress tab as you did before. This is just an easier way to publish all the necessary heads with one click.
